“ My third-cousin Irvin was a wonderful encouragement to me, doing family history research. He was the only family member who possessed a photo of his great-grandmother. He graciously loaned this treasure to me, as well as dozens of other valuable family pictures, so that copies could be shared with others. His childhood memories were terrific history lessons. Besides all that, the love in his heart was evident each time I visited him. He wasn't just a family contact, a distant cousin, he became a very close friend. Irvin talked openly about the LORD, about how good He had been to him, seeing him through all the trials of life. There was no doubt that he trusted Jesus Christ as his Saviour, and there is no doubt that Irvin is now in His presence ... waiting for his loved-ones who have also received the LORD.

Love to all the family,

“ I remember him reading the prayer list on Wednesday nights. I can hear him praying just as good as if he were standing right here now. He loved his grandchildren so much. He was always so nice to me.
