“Claiborne went by a few different names, but I think we all could agree... everyone knew him as Cowboy.

There is only one name that fits him even better than that, for me, and that's my Papa.

There are a million things we can learn from his life and legacy. He didn't lecture or try to change anyone. Instead, he taught by the way he lived his life every day.

While I could never truly fit it all into words, I will sum it up to this:

A meaningful life is not about being rich or being highly educated... and it surely isn't about being perfect.

A meaningful life is about being real, being humble, being strong and "being somebody who makes everyone feel like somebody."

No one did this better than him, and he will be truly missed - but remembered forever.

I miss you and will love you until we see each other again.
