His love for music started more than twenty years ago and he was a self-taught multi-instrumentalist; being able to play various instruments ranging from the guitar, piano, drums and harmonica. Throughout his musical career he became a singer and an accomplished songwriter. His most recent accomplishment being an album titled "P.M. Allen of Danville; a niece, Jenna Thurman and fiancé, Charlie Haige of Roanoke, VA; and nephews, Stone Thurman of Los Angeles, CA and Noah Thurman of Danville, VA.

“ Neil was one of the first friends of my life. We were inseparable from the time we were six years old, throughout our entire childhood. He meant so much to me that I invited him to play guitar as I walked down the aisle in my wedding. As a kid, Neil was notorious for his wild humor. He broke every rule and I absolutely loved it. Who could forget when he hid an entire meatloaf in the bushes so he wouldn't have to eat it? Or when he responded to being punished by "taking away" a few of his parents' items in retaliation? What about the time a ten-year-old Neil threw my dad's Zippo lighter in the lake? Bold move, sir. I respected that boldness. As a kid, he was the prime inspiration of delicious rebellion. My own child is now ten. He idolizes Neil as the ultimate bad-a kid, based solely on the many stories I've told. The world has lost a joker, an artist, a man who was the epitome of cool. Neil, I have diary entries from 1987, saying that one day I would marry you. I still have those diaries. I still have letters you wrote me when you were just a boy. I will always love you. Ronnie, my deepest condolences. Neil will never be forgotten by me.

“ I am heartbroken to hear this news about Neil. He was a dear friend from early childhood through adulthood. I have fond memories of playing music with him throughout high school and enjoyed the many times we reconnected as adults. A raw, natural talent. A sharp, witty sense of humor. A deeply caring and authentic human being who brought a lot of joy to my life. I have always admired and been inspired by his musicality - the kind that cannot be taught. Music was home for both of us weirdos growing up in a small town, and our shared musical experiences gave us somewhere and something to belong to. Neil was not afraid to take the road less traveled, and he taught me to break a few rules, to color outside of the lines and to not take myself too seriously. I am grateful that we grew up together, and he will be missed. I am sending Ronnie, Jennifer and Neil's family and friends peace and strength during this difficult time. Rest easy, friend.

“ My heart is heavy from the news of Neil. He and I were classmates (class of 1999) and members of the Symphony at GW. We were also orchestra officers together. He was a very talented bass player and principal chair of his section. There are so many memories of Neil that I will cherish. He could always make me smile. My sincere condolences to your family.
