“ Stephen, it's been almost thirty years since I saw you last. You and Linda were always welcoming in the countless hours I spent at your home with Joshua and Michael. For a few summers I was probably at your house more than my house. All friendly memories. Every single one.

While not everyone stays married forever, it is a sadness to see Michael and Joshua omitted from this short recounting of your life, as their lives were made possible only through yours and Linda's.

I know the road of life is long and we cannot help but feel different at the end than how we felt at the beginning, and we don't always end up where we thought we might, but in my heart, in my own naive way, when you're at the gates of heaven being asked about your life, I believe you would never choose to forget them.
